How to improve your firm's brand and digital intelligence

Welcome to the latest edition of Living Ratings

Our 2018 analysis of asset managers' digital intelligence revealed many in the Top 100 providing exceptional digital content and engaging functionality for financial advisers and intermediaries (FAs). A year on, and it is a case of one step forward, two steps back.

Kate Shaw, Co-founder and Chief Executive Officer

This year we have modified our criteria, placing more of a focus on the expression of the organisations' brand and values as well as looking for evidence of asset managers keeping pace with the rapidly evolving social digital arena. This shift has altered the ranking of many of last year's leading firms. In short, those firms who rely on talking about numbers have lost out to those who really help the audience to understand what makes them different and valuable partners.

Engaging content like thought leadership has improved but it is surprising to see that many of the basics of effective digital content are still being forgotten – only 12% of managers provide high quality search results – an area that needed greater improvement from 2018. Key content for asset management websites are the fund and strategy pages. Last year 41% of asset managers provided high quality pages, this year the figure has dropped to only 26%.

Here are some key themes from our 2019 Ratings research

Lack of differentiation – the value of values

In a crowded marketplace with similar products it's surprising that so few asset managers are differentiating themselves by stating a brand purpose or expressing brand values. Just 37% of the Top 100 Asset Managers share their values on their sites down from 48% in 2018. Easily finding the 'Why they matter' to their clients is also difficult – just 38% state their brand positioning on their home page down from 2018's 48%.

Targeted intermediary content – on target but still more to achieve

Whilst the Top 5 ranked companies have invested in creating useful intermediary resources, it is a shame to see that there has been an overall drop in the provision of dedicated intermediary tools – just 31% of companies this year, versus 35% last year.

Building expertise and confidence for this audience via intermediary education also needs further effort – just 16% of asset managers are supporting this key audience in this way.

Thought leadership – opportunities to lead

With an absence of brand purpose or differentiating values the quality of thought leadership and opinion based content becomes ever more important. Getting this right is an opportunity to stand out from competitors and to lead an issue. There are great examples of interesting and compelling content being provided but too few offer sharing to social media from these thought leadership pieces – in effect squandering the opportunity for this content to influence.

Hot topics – but some lukewarm content

Asset managers are keenly aware of the growing evidence suggesting that ESG factors offer investors a potential long-term performance advantage. Yet, when it comes to their own company, ESG awareness diminishes. Only 55% of the Top 100 have a clear link to a corporate ESG policy on their sites.

Good to see that 35% of them now provide Diversity content – up from 24% in 2018. But there is room for improvement – we found Diversity content was light and often hidden away in recruitment pages.

New technologies – new ways to engage

As newer advanced technologies are developed, asset managers are slow, perhaps cautious, to adopt them. But the advantages of personalisation, for example, warrant consideration as that service looks to increase relevance and engagement. The use of apps remains the same 15% as last year, and the voice activation revolution has yet to hit asset management with only J.P. Morgan Asset Management and Putnam Investments leading the way by making their fund information accessible from Amazon Alexa and Google Home.

Social media – good connectivity

Social media remains a big opportunity for asset managers as too many of them simply draw content from their parent or wider group, offering little targeted messaging to their intermediary audience. We found only 49% of firms have a clear social media strategy. Aligned with that statistic, only 43% provide a high quality Twitter channel and 45% offer a good presence on Facebook.

Blogging – stories well told

Blogging has improved year over year, with many firms moving away from dry content to effective storytelling, the secret to engaging readers for repeat visits. We saw 42% of firms score well on this content criterion, up nicely from last year's 32%.

Who, what, when and how we rated and how we classified each firm

Who we rated

In July, August and September 2019 our analysts reviewed the brand and digital intelligence of the world's leading asset managers (source: ©IPE Top 400 Asset Managers published in June 2019). Each firm was rated through the eyes of an intermediary, against nearly 100 criteria covering engagement (functionality and social channels) and evidence (brand and content) across four categories.

How we calculate our scores

Each firm is allocated an overall percentage score. This is calculated by adding the scores for the individually weighted engagement and evidence criteria. We then use the separate engagement and evidence scores to classify each asset manager with one of four definitions of their digital presence – Determined, Energetic, Focused or Lacklustre.

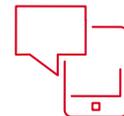

Sector averages are based on the full listing of the Top 100 firms. The five firms with the highest scores are also reviewed with expanded case studies.

Social media content

Raising the bar. The 2019 criteria

With each iteration of our report, we evolve our scoring methodology to be more demanding. The 2019 Asset Manager Ratings features a detailed analysis of:

Engagement

High quality search

We want it all and we want it now. Asset managers should have quick intuitive search engines that serve up filtered results to help visitors find what they want easily.

IA and UX

Information architecture and user experiences are more important than ever to tell your brand story and present relevant and engaging content.

SEO

Never has search engine optimisation (SEO) been so important – it can be the difference between prospective clients finding you – or not! We apply third-party SEO software to scan every website and assess whether best practice has been adopted.

Site speed

No one likes waiting for answers, so what does a slow web server say about your firm? We reward firms with fast sites and speedy search results.

Active social media channels

Firms adopting best practice, using a range of active social media channels and promoting content that is proprietary can expect high scores. We also look positively on firms using the channels for their different audiences.

Evidence

Brand positioning

Asset managers that are clear about who they are, what they do and why it matters to their target audiences on their home pages are rewarded. They do not assume that everyone knows them.

Visual language

Recognition is given to those firms that have a clear and consistent digital brand and use it to help their readers consume data.

Evidence of what you do

In a sector obsessed with facts, we reward asset managers that provide compelling content that help their target audiences understand their skills and specialisms.

ESG

Many firms offer ESG funds and impact investing, but most fail to talk about how they embrace sustainability as a company or talk about what it means to their target audiences. We reward the asset managers who do and make it part of their business strategy.

Specific gender-related content

We reward asset managers that tackle this industry-wide issue head on and provide evidence that they are addressing gender imbalance.

Defining brand and digital intelligence

Establishing a positive brand perception has never been more important. Often a client's first brand experience is a visit to a website, therefore the digital expression of brand intelligence is paramount in building the right kind of connection with a user.

Brand creation and curation

Creating a more influential digital experience requires careful attention to the way a brand behaves, speaks and presents itself visually. Cohesion and consistency are key in achieving this along with a mode of communicating that is distinctive and proprietary to that brand.

Many asset managers have much to do to improve the digital deployment of their brands, particularly around visual identity and brand language. Indifference to making a brand work better often comes from a cynical perspective that rests in the complacency of a steady balance sheet. However, firms must deploy their brands intelligently, effectively and consistently, especially to engage with younger and more digitally savvy target audiences. Clarity and articulation of who you are, what you do and why it matters to your audience form the foundation of creating significant difference for your brand in the financial landscape.

Expressing brand intelligence online can be done in a number of ways. Consistent and coherent brand language is essential and extends from a succinct and meaningful positioning statement that articulates the who, what and why of the brand and influences all subsequent content in the site. Brand values, supported by evidence in the broader content, deliver succinct points of reference to influence brand perception both internally and externally. A clear tone of voice throughout a digital experience serves to set governance to all written content from fund pages, document libraries right through to diversity and ESG pages.

A distinctive visual brand is a powerful tool for asset managers to use in building brand recognition in a busy marketplace. Having an engaging and proprietary visual identity is an effective way to capture and retain user attention. It can inspire more compelling content, such as video and animation, and protect brand consistency in the continued conversation in social media. Effective visual brand design is an essential part of the bigger brand picture that is all too often overlooked or underestimated by asset managers. In a sector that is beset by blue and grey colour palettes and arbitrary stock photos of modern city architecture, embracing a visual identity that makes a statement about who you are as a firm can be a huge advantage and pay dividends in user engagement.

Developing digital acumen

Equally important to brand is digital intelligence, and the thoughtful use of your firm's digital footprint will help amplify your brand.

In a sector where facts are essential, the leading firms use their websites to deliver to their target audiences issues-based insights, case studies, tools and well-structured fund and strategy pages, written with a singular client-first tone of voice and available in a variety of media, not just endless screens of text. However, these asset managers are the few amongst the many, with the vast majority serving up bland cookie cutter and indistinguishable content that fails to engage or inspire.

When it comes to search, the best asset managers serve up enriched and fast results that are filtered and make it easy for their users to find what they're looking for. The worst just provide lists, leaving the user to search again by scrolling through suggested answer after answer. What does this say about their firm?

Website SEO is also one of the pillars of digital wisdom, with our leaders placing great emphasis on ensuring their content is not just tagged and described correctly, but written with search engines in mind – succinct, relevant and timely.

A clear content strategy sits at the heart of digital intelligence – using your website and social media channels, not as a dumping ground for every word created by the firm, but as carefully curated outlets with different content delivered to each targeted audience segment. Our advice? Do less, but do it better. The mantra asset managers should adopt is to fight the excess of clutter and noise.

Investment in brand and digital intelligence empowers firms to take the pole position in a bustling marketplace and opens up a more genuine dialogue with audiences, both incumbent and prospective.

A distinctive visual brand is a powerful tool for asset managers to use in building brand recognition in a crowded marketplace.

Are you determined, focused, energetic or lacklustre?

By analysing the individual engagement and evidence scores, we have categorised each of the leading firms' brand and digital intelligence into four areas.

Engagement and evidence: the leaders

Determined asset managers build experiences for their users

Asset managers that take a determined approach to digital engagement have a relentless client focus. Their successful formula combines two key elements:

Engagement

Determined asset managers recognise the potential of useful digital functionality backed by a client-focused channel strategy. They can then create appealing and relevant content in a variety of media including graphics, audio, animation and video that captivates, informs and motivates the target audience.

Evidence

Determined asset managers promote clear purpose. They offer the user informative brand-driven messaging, relevant subject matter and the kind of insight that shows a deep understanding of client issues and interests. This demonstrates the ability to help clients succeed.

DWS' site also offers a clear link to some of the most original values of the Top 100 which are evidenced by content throughout their site.

The 'ESG engine' is a dedicated and detailed area that paints a compelling picture of DWS's ESG strategy. DWS Research Institute is their thought leadership hub with a stated focus of 'original ideas – made clear' and does exactly that – bringing compelling thought leadership content to life for all audiences.

From its prominent 'Newsletter' and 'CIO quarterly update' sign ups, to its extensive media library, there is so much content here that it has created an archive area where older content can be reviewed by date or topic – a logical solution to the issue of insight content piling up and losing relevance.

Social media channels deliver the same convincing insights and content. DWS was kept out of the top spot only by PIMCO's greater focus on specific intermediary content.

This active intermediary support is demonstrated throughout their digital footprint. From a prominent 'Build your business' section and a useful adviser education area, BlackRock delivers a powerful and distinctive digital experience. There is a plethora of tools, a brilliant App

Classification:
▶ Determined

Key features

- ▶ Excellent social media content
- ▶ Creative and rich infographics
- ▶ Strong and numerous insights
- ▶ Strategies brought to life

Schrodgers continues to deliver a consistently effective digital presence. Despite the highest scores of any firm for social media content, they occupy a 4th place in our Ratings research this year. They were kept out of the 3rd place only because their website functionality scores were lower. This rich site was let down by overall site speed and functionality.

Schrodgers has a powerful way of explaining its strategies with startlingly direct content. 'The value perspective' is a great example of a dedicated area that effortlessly and informatively lifts the lid off their thinking on exploiting value investing.

The pared back but logical navigation is intuitive and clear. They continue to avoid the trap fallen into by other competitors of bouncing you to microsites within the main site. The use of icons to identify key areas of the site and infographics to clearly explain global and financial trends is a strong feature on this site. There are many well-executed graphics that introduce deeper content.

The overall result is a confident, rich and informative site supported by the excellent use of social media channels.

- Classification:
- ▶ Determined

Key features

- ▶ Compelling visual brand and tone of voice
- ▶ Featured Funds and search on home page
- ▶ Navigation with highlighted content
- ▶ Engaging Perspectives, Market Insights and MarketEye blog

BNY Mellon takes our 5th place this year. They have created a very strong digital presence: rich insights, targeted intermediary content and detailed fund information are delivered along with a brilliantly media-rich brand.

'Perspectives' is their media-rich home of thought leadership and BNY Mellon is one of the few investment managers who have invested in both a distinct and beautifully crafted tone of voice. The content here uses engaging and witty language to draw the reader in.

Targeted intermediary content is varied. Their log-in only area called the 'Advisor Institute' supports ongoing educational needs and the 'Subscription service' allows advisers to sign up to receive pitch books and investment reports.

The lack of a crafted Google description was one of the few things that held them back, but BNY Mellon's excellent digital footprint and social media presence meant they were only half a percentage point behind 4th placed Schroders.

Opportunities to lead

Our Living Ratings results this year show a sector that could work harder to attract visitors with a compelling digital and brand presence. There are opportunities for all: developing an engaging digital experience is not just the preserve of the wealthiest firms – it's not about money spent but the care and focus expended. Here are six big opportunities to make your brand and digital intelligence even better.

1 Invest in your brand

The determined firms in this year's report use their brands to differentiate themselves in a largely homogenised market. They state their brand positioning up front, share their brand values, have a consistent tone of voice and use their visual brand to create compelling online experiences that are clear, concise and unique. Take another look at your brand and ask yourself does it communicate who you are, what you do, and most importantly, why does it matter to your target audiences?

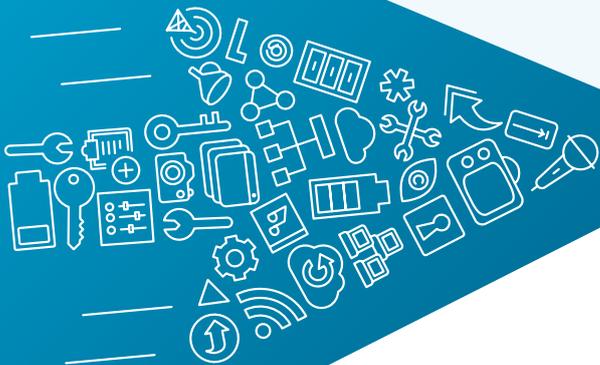

2 One-to-one or one-to-many?

The leaders in our analysis are delivering personalised content to intermediaries. This is targeted fund data, tools, thought leadership or educational materials that makes their time-poor target audiences' lives easier and demonstrates a strong degree of empathy and understanding. Do you have relevant content that you could personalise and so improve your firm's digital experience?

3 Prove it and present it

In a sector dominated by research and analysis that drives smart investment advice and decisions, there's a surprising lack of facts on many firms' websites. Determined firms tell their target audiences not only about what makes them different from their competitors, but they are transparent about their investment criteria, fund performance, risks and the teams who make the decisions. They also make the content easy-to-find and easy-to-consume by implementing good search functionality. Can you say that your firm does this?

Relevant sustainability

The good news is that the majority of firms (55%) in this year's survey have a link to their ESG policy. The bad news is that for many this is just a policy sitting in isolation to the rest of the site, making it feel like lip service for external procurement teams. Our leaders, however, take time to explain and show evidence of how sustainability, the environment and diversity are woven into the fabric of their firms and aligned with their long-term business strategies. What can you do to improve your sustainability and diversity communications so that it's meaningful for existing and potential investors, internally and in the war for talent?

Social media strategy

It's 2019, yet still less than half of the firms rated have a clear social media strategy in place. Determined firms use social media strategically, selecting carefully curated content for each channel based on who's following them and so demonstrating a true understanding of their target audiences. These firms also see social media as another opportunity to share their visual identity, creating consistently branded channels and posting proprietary social tiles (images) that are linked to relevant and useful insight on their websites. Take a look at your firm's social media footprint and ask yourself what can you do to improve your approach and strategy?

Get the digital basics right

Overall the asset management sector is still lagging behind other services sectors in getting the basics of a robust digital presence right. There are easy wins here: an engaging Google descriptor tells your story before a client even visits your site. Your website needs to be responsive but also intelligently so: does your site lose critical navigation or information in small screen versions? Pay attention to the little details: site speed, SEO and SSL certificates all play an important part in providing a credible digital footprint. What can you do to make your digital presence the best it can be?

If you would like us to help you answer some of these questions and build brand and digital intelligence for your firm, please get in touch.
